

With Jewish American Heritage Month coming to a close, we hope you found a way to honor and celebrate people in this community throughout May and in the future. Here is a brief collection of resources to learn more and further celebrate Jewish American Heritage Month.

- PEW Research Center Survey – Results from a survey provide an extensive report on how Jewish Americans are publicly identifying as individuals and participating within the Jewish community as well as concerns that come with their identity.
- National Museum of American Jewish History Resources – Nearly 100 organizations around the country came together to help Americans of all backgrounds discover, celebrate and learn about the Jewish American experience. The National Museum of American Jewish History has gathered resources including recorded events, online art exhibits, short videos and more to recognize the month.
