

Emotional Intelligence and Compassion Fatigue in Emergency Nurses

Study Cover Letter

My name is Kylie Yearwood and I am a PhD in Nursing candidate at Walden University. I am conducting a study on emotional intelligence and compassion fatigue in emergency nurses. I would like to invite you to participate in this study.

You are eligible for this study if you are a registered nurse working full-time (over 30 hours per week) in an emergency department in an acute-care hospital (not a standalone emergency department). Also, you must have worked in the emergency department for at least one year. Advanced practice registered nurses (APRNs) such as nurse practitioners, clinical nurse specialists, and certified respiratory nurse anesthetists are not eligible for this study.

It takes approximately 20 minutes to complete both surveys and internet access is required. The results will be used to determine if a relationship between emotional intelligence and compassion fatigue exists in emergency nurses. Participation in my study is completely voluntary and can be stopped at any time. Your participation is greatly appreciated.

I hope you will consider participating in my study by clicking on this link:

Click Here to Take the Survey

Sincerely,
Kylie Yearwood, MSN, RN
kylie.yearwood@waldenu.edu
PhD Candidate Walden University